Excerpt: .them to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven; -- when St. Paul says expressly, that the children of believers are holy; --can any one presume to say, that a child so dying after having been baptized, and admitted into the body of Christ s Church, will not be received into heaven, and that Christ himself and St. Paul have said what we are Not to believe? If a child, then, so dying, be received into the kingdom of heaven, the Church, in that case, I think, without dispute, must be justified in calling that child regenerated. But as it is impossible the Church should know whether the child would die or not before actual sin, she applies the word regenerated to it, as it is charitably presumed to be after baptism, when she publicly receives it into the communion of Christ s Church, and in this confidence considers and pronounces it regenerated from Adam s sins. If it live, the rest belongs to God, who only knows whether it be regenerated, or not. Nothing is said here about that renovation which follows the awakened conscience, when we call our ways u to remembrance. These emotions no one can deny, or the presence of that Spiritual Comforter, without which the heart cannot be effectually turned to God in maturer age. But here the greatest caution is to be observed: our actual sins may be more or less; and the feelings of the...
