These hundred years of independence have not taught the American Republic how to blend heterogeneous races into one common life, any more than the institutions of the older world. The aboriginal owners of the soil remain in sullen discontent, or burst into violences that now seem to approach the bitter end. Congress may decree civil rights to the coloured race, but sentiment and manners will not ratify the Act, even among those who have made the largest sacrifices in the cause of free humanity. It is not for us, with the West Indian outbreak in our memory and the East Indian enigma before us, to indulge in any invidious comparisons: perhaps we should be the humbler of the two. Again: although it was believed, and with...
